Lewis Parley Stalls, Coal Strike Grows

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—UMW Chieftain John L. Lewis and soft coal operators emerged from a conference with Labor Secretary Schwellenbach today, apparently still at odds on ways of averting a nation-wide coal strike. The Secretary's exploration into the union-management controversy over foremen's recognition—which already has closed more than 500 mines—assumed day-long proportions, with the two and a half-hour morning parley resuming later in the day.

As Lewis left Schwellenbach's office, he referred reporters to the secretary for an account of the session. Asked to elaborate, he replied:

"How can one elaborate when there is nothing on which one can elaborate?"

Schwellenbach turned quickly to this problem after his efforts at conciliation between the CIO oil workers and 10 refinery companies ended in failure and Navy seizure of the plants by White House orders.

In the offing was more trouble foreshadowed by a demonstration walkout of 250,000 telephone workers which paralyzed operator service in the Bell System for a few hours yesterday.

Notice of a strike vote among hundreds of telephone workers will be filed within 15 days, Henry Mayer, counsel for Long Line operators, said. The union demands 30 per cent wage increase.

More than 150,000 miners are involved in the spreading coal strikes. Production is down by 749,000 tons daily out of the million-ton normal average. Solid Fuels Administrator Ickes said 529 mines were idle at the start of business today.

Earlier indications the shiploaders' strike, which tied up 380 vessels in New York harbor, would end Monday received a setback when locals of the AFL International Longshoremen's Ass'n voted against returning.

Meantime it was learned the Navy has agreed to join with the CIO-Oil Workers Union in asking War Labor Board approval of a 15 per cent wage increase which some refinery companies have agreed to put into effect when a 40-hour week is restored.

Some companies already are getting ready to go from a 48 or 44-hour week to 40 hours, but the production loss caused by the strikes beginning Sept. 16 may delay them.

Despite the critical labor picture, the labor-management conference scheduled for Nov. 5 cannot be held sooner, Schwellenbach said, because of previous commitments by some principals.

There is no definite assurance that the Navy was going to get

BARON SHIDEHARA
Named Premier of Japan

Shidehara Head Of Jap Cabinet

TOKYO, Oct. 6 (AP)—The trembling old hands of Baron Kijuro Shidehara, who had fought Japanese military aggression from its start, today picked up the reins of Japanese government—which he said he hopes to make truly liberal.

The 73-year-old enfeebled Baron was summoned dramatically from 14 years of retirement, forced upon him by the militarists whom he opposed, to become Premier of Japan at its most critical point in history.

Shidehara's first official act was to reappoint Shigern Yoshida as foreign minister, Domei reported. Yoshida was said to have accepted the reappointment.

Hollywood Battling Resumes

BURBANK, Cal., Oct. 6 (INS)—Fierce rioting and fighting between strikers and police broke out again at Warner Bros. Burbank studio early today after pickets, many equipped with gas masks as protection against tear gas, halted studio workers attempting to go on duty.

Fist fights began when policemen of Burbank, Los Angeles and Glendale pushed through the swarming strikers and attempted to escort a doorman through the main gates.

The melee quieted down only after the doorman, faced by more than 800 pickets who gathered at the studio at dawn, retreated across the street from the pickets.

Although between 450 and 500 nonstrikers and spectators had assembled in front of the studio gates, the lone worker was the only one who attempted to cross the picket lines to go on duty.

Many strikers had gas masks strapped over their backs when they took up their positions in the picket lines. Others, armed with clubs, left masks available in their automobiles.

Fists and beer bottles, clubs and stones, tear gas and water from high-pressure hose were the weapons in the morning-long brawl at the studio, where between 500 and 1000 pickets gathered.

The strike stems from a jurisdictional dispute between two AFL factions over bargaining representation of 77 studio set decorators.

Returning B-29 Falls Into Pacific

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 6 (AP)—A returning B-29 bomber from the western Pacific plunged into the ocean about 300 miles off the coast at 5 a. m. (PST) today, Mather Field officials announced.

Normal passenger and crew load is 20 men. The field has no further particulars.

Unofficially 16 of the 20 crewmen were reported saved but Coast Guard officials said no official announcement would be made until details were obtained.

Strikers Back on Job Rush To Catch Up in Oil Delivery

Striking CIO oil workers returned to their jobs today and truckloads of oil and gasoline rolled on the highways as the industry, bogged down since Wednesday except for emergency deliveries, struggled to get distribution back to normal.

Oil company officials and drivers said the trucks would roll until late tonight and that deliveries would be made tomorrow in emergency cases.

In announcing the end of the walkout, CIO officials declared the "back to work" order did not apply to workers at two Shell Oil Co. plants in Cambridge and Waltham, who have been on strike for more than a week over the discharge of a union business agent.

The approximately 600 other workers on strike walked out early this week in support of the Oil Workers' International Union's demand for a nation-wide 30 per cent pay increase and returned to their jobs by order of O. A. Knight, international president.

Members of Local 366 halted picketing at the Cities Service Braintree plant early in the day and trucks started rolling soon afterward, according to William E. Smith, local president.

But other strikers, members of Local 381, remained on Revere and Chelsea highways during the morning while their officials were in executive session. The officials ordered them to return to work at noon, stating that the order applied to all except 42 striking workers at the two Shell plants.

But Boston's labor problems had a new complication today in the walkout of 350 employes of the Back Bay steam specialties firm of Manning, Maxwell and Moore as the result of a breakdown in negotiations. The workers seek a 20 per cent wage boost, increased holidays and piece work adjustments.

Stalin Faces Election Feb. 10

MOSCOW, Oct. 6 (AP)—Premier Stalin and all other members of the present Supreme Soviet must seek re-election next Feb. 10 if they are to continue in their seats another four years.

The first general elections in the Soviet Union since Dec. 12, 1937, have been ordered held in February by the presidium of the Supreme Soviet.

Only one political party, the Communists, participates in elections.

On election day the voters vote on only one candidate for a position—one who is nominated in advance. If a voter does not want this candidate, he turns in a blank ballot.

Moscow sources said the coming election was expected to see several priests nominated for the first time.

Jurors in Riot Cry Laval Guilt

By LEON PEARSON

PARIS, Oct. 6 (INS)—The astonishing spectacle of jurors hurling insults at Defendant Pierre Laval caused a near riot today in the court room where the former Vichy premier is on trial for treason. The session was suspended in wild tumult when jurors leapt to their feet shouting:

"Justice will be done! Pierre Laval, you won't escape your fate!"

The outburst was prompted by a letter, addressed to the minister of justice, which Laval read.

Prosecutor Andre Mornet jumped up and accused Laval of trying to delay the trial by reading letters in an attempt to evade direct questions concerning laws passed during his reign as premier.

Laval screamed back:

"Those laws you applied yourself!"

Judge Paul Mongibeaux broke in and asked Laval:

"Where did you get your power?"

Before Laval could answer, Judge Mongibeaux shouted:

"From the Germans! From the Germans!"

Laval again leapt to his feet and yelled angrily:

"You are asking the questions and giving the answers. "It's just as well that I say nothing further."

The jurors immediately leaped up in the box with their accusing chant.

When all attempts to restore order failed, Judge Mongibeaux ordered the guards to remove Laval from the courtroom and then suspended the session.

As Laval was led out, Mornet shouted:

"If Laval had been tried a year ago, he would have been court-martialled and sentenced to death.

"It's ample time that justice was done."

The jurors and crowd milled about the courtroom shouting and arguing for several minutes after Laval had been taken to his cell.

Laval and eight of his lawyers and defense witnesses then refused to appear, after which the court finally decided to continue the trial without Laval's presence.

The session got under way and Albert Lebrun—former president of France—was called upon to testify.

Argentine Police Fire on Women

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6 (INS)—More than 1500 men and women students were under arrest in Buenos Aires and the provinces today in the wake of riots which followed seizure of Argentina's six national universities by government police.

At least one person was wounded when police fired into crowds protesting dispersal of some 1000 women demonstrating in central Buenos Aires against the arrest of their sons and relatives striking against dictatorial government policies.

Cape Couple Drowned on Fishing Trip

BUZZARDS BAY, Oct. 6—A middle-aged Monument Beach couple, with two sons in the service, are tragically dead today because they wanted scallops for their evening meal and went out together in Buzzards Bay to drag for them from their little skiff.

Their camaraderie resulted in the drowning off Rocky Point, near Gray Gables, of Ernest L. Haskell and his wife. Her body was found by Coast Guardsmen last night.

Today, Coast Guard planes, a blimp and surface craft searched for the body of the husband. Throughout the night a plane dropped flares to help Coast Guard craft in the search. It was without result.

The father and mother drove to the beach yesterday morning. When they had not returned by nightfall their neighbors told Bourne police, who asked help of the Coast Guard station at Sandwich.

Sandwich contacted the Salem Air Base, which assigned an air-sea rescue plane to the search. The Coast Guard found Mrs. Haskell's body not far from the beach. A flare dropped from the plane disclosed the skiff, a 14-footer, not far away.

With the coming of dawn today the search for Haskell's body was expanded over a greater area by Coast Guardsmen afoot as well as in the air and on the water.

The Haskells were last seen at 4 p. m. yesterday off Wing's Neck, not a great distance from where they had put off in their little boat.

The husband was a fireman employed at Camp Edwards. His wife was an active member of the Buzzards Bay Grange.

They had four children, Harold, still in California after his recent discharge from the Army; Harley, who is in the Navy; a third son, Burton, who lives in Sagamore, and a daughter, Mrs. James Silva, who lived with her parents.

Automatic Alarm

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 6 (AP)—A burglar, more scientific than domestic, didn't make any progress in a Portland home.

Clem Johnson awoke and found his bed sprinkled with chloroform, a precautionary measure taken by the scientific prowler.

However, the intruder forgot to treat the baby's bed, and the yowling child scared him away.

'Mistake!' Sobs Wife in Killing

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6—"It was a horrible mistake! Oh, why did I do it?" Tearfully repeating these words, time and again, Mrs. Annie Irene Mansfeldt, wife of a prominent doctor and mother of three children, today faced a murder charge in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Vada Martin, 32, a special nurse she suspected of having an affair with Dr. Mansfeldt.

Overcome with grief at the tragic outcome of her meeting Mrs. Martin, the 46-year-old matron was under treatment at Central Emergency Hospital, where she had taken the fatally wounded nurse.

Before collapsing with remorse, Mrs. Mansfeldt, an expensively dressed society leader, told police she had "entertained doubts" about her husband's love for her during the past year. She said:

"He seemed to have an unusual number of calls that kept his away nights."

She said she went to a hospital late one night last week to check on Dr. Mansfeldt's whereabouts. She said she saw Mrs. Martin seated in the doctor's automobile.

"I asked her who she was and she told me that she was his assistant," Mrs. Mansfeldt said. "I knew he had no assistant."

Torn by doubts and jealousy after that meeting, Mrs. Mansfeldt told police she made an appointment with Mrs. Martin. She said she carried a .32-caliber revolver she had used in amateur theatricals.

"I accused her of being infatuated with my husband," she told police. "She denied it, but told me she admired my husband more than any man she ever knew. I demanded that she tell the truth."

Insisting that she thought the first bullet in the gun was a blank, Mrs. Mansfeldt said she pointed the gun at the woman she considered her rival. She said she only intended to frighten Mrs. Martin.

"When the nurse said she had been out with Dr. Mansfeldt a few times, I knew she was not telling the truth," she said. "My husband told me she had been out with him many times.

"She kept denying everything. I fired. At first it seemed as if nothing happened except she denied again ever being intimate with my husband.

"I struck her in the face with the gun. I told her that shot wasn't a real one and said 'if you don't tell the truth I'll use a real one.'"

Bursting into tears, Mrs. Mansfeldt concluded:

"She told me with her dying breath that she had never been intimate with my husband. Now, I believe her and it's too late."

She drove to Central Emergency Hospital, dropped a revolver on the receiving desk and said, "A woman is dying in the front seat of my automobile."

Arraigned in municipal court, the case was continued to Oct. 10. Meanwhile, the Red Cross was attempting to locate Mrs. Martin's husband, a Navy warrant officer believed to be on duty in Admiralty Islands.

36 Horses Die, Blaze Probed

Cause of the $50,000 four-alarm fire which destroyed the J. C. Keith Stables in Kenrick st., Brighton, and burned 36 horses to death was under investigation today by Insp. John J. Hanley of the Boston arson squad.

The animals were trapped in the cellar. Sixteen other horses, tethered outside, were set free and police spent until early today rounding them up from the nearby Commonwealth Country Club and in Newton streets.

REMORSEFUL KILLER IS ARRAIGNED—Crying out "Oh, why did I do it," Mrs. Annie Mansfeldt, wife of a San Francisco doctor, faces court to be arraigned on a murder charge after she allegedly shot and killed Mrs. Vada Martin, a nurse, whom she suspected of being too friendly with the doctor-husband.

8 Dare Crosby In A-Bomb Test

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (AP)—Eight scientists who worked on the University of Chicago atomic bomb project stood ready today to "work at our laboratory benches while Mr. Crosby's scientist attempts to explode us" in an effort to disprove a claim by the Crosby Foundation that it had discovered a defense against the atomic bomb.

The claim of a defense was published Monday by Larry Crosby, brother of Crooner Bing Crosby, as president of the Crosby Foundation, Hollywood. Crosby said the defense technique was so simple A-bombs could be detonated without one even knowing their exact whereabouts.

The Chicagoans, repeating their assertion "there is no defense against the atomic bomb," said in a statement:

"The recent claim of the Crosby Research Foundation to have found a defense against the atomic bomb is as preposterous as the foundation's previous claim to have set off an atomic explosion with a piece of material the size of a pea.

". . . The whole Crosby Foundation claim shows such an ignorance of the elementary facts of nuclear physics that the scientists of this project would be inclined to laugh the claim off as a joke were it not for the harmful influence such a statement could have on the nation's thinking.

"Mr. Larry Crosby says 'a scientist has convinced me there is a defense for the atomic bomb.' But Mr. Crosby doesn't have the scientific qualifications to be 'convinced' in these matters.

"The whole group of us volunteer to pay our way to any site Mr. Crosby suggests to question this scientist, and further we volunteer to work at our laboratory benches while Mr. Crosby's scientist attempts to explode us at our work."

The eight signers of the statement are: Dr. A. H. Jaffey, Dr. C. Hindman, Dr. B. B. Cunningham, Dr. T. O. Jones, Dr. T. J. Neubert, Dr. M. B. Friedman, Dr. William Rubinson and Dr. C. A. Hutchinson, Jr., all of whom worked on the "Manhattan Project."

'Surplus' GIs Freed, More Recruits Sought

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Army today authorized release of surplus enlisted men on duty in the United States, and President Truman signed legislation designed to spur voluntary enlistments in the armed forces.

The Army order, applying to air, ground and service forces, permits commanders to discharge soldiers who are covered by all these conditions:

1—Not currently eligible for discharge by reason of points or age.

2—Not qualified for foreign duty and have completed two years of service since Sept. 16, 1940.

3—Surplus to the requirements of the force to which they were assigned and "not economically retrainable to perform useful service."

4—Not possessed of a "scarce skill" needed by the Army.

The measure approved by Mr. Truman authorizes short-term enlistments, optional Army retirement at half pay after 20 years of service, which the Navy already permits, and extends benefits of the GI Bill of Rights to men re-enlisting.

New recruits may enlist for 18 months. Men already in the service with at least six months' training may re-enlist for 12 months.

Safe Theft Laid to 3 Of 7 Crime Suspects

Three of the seven suspects rounded up in the police drive to halt the Greater Boston crime wave were formally charged today with theft of a safe from a Boylston st., Back Bay, automobile company's office and will be arraigned Monday.

The men, all ex-convicts, are Joseph E. Keyes, 36, of Topliff st., Dorchester, William C. Gallagher, 28, of Florence ave., Philadelphia, and John E. Eppich, 31, of Tremont st., South End.

They were charged with breaking into the Lalime-Patridge Co., and stealing a truck in addition to the office safe. Police said the safe contained less than $100.

Louis J. Mercier, 37, of Wedgewood st., Everett, father of six children, charged with falsifying auto registrations used by the gang, was fined $40 in Waltham by Judge Fred Crafts.

Police said Mercier was paid $100 to register two cars in his name because insurance companies refused to insure Keyes' cars.

At the police lineup, 15 victims of recent holdups and robberies failed to identify any suspect who included two State Prison parolees captured Friday in a thrilling land and sea chase.

All except Mercier were held for further questioning.

The two nabbed in the boat chase denied any part in the crime wave, claiming they were "just going fishing" and were surprised when police arrested them.

The younger man, a 32-year-old Hyde Park resident, admitted he served nine years in State Prison for armed robbery. He said he knew nothing about fishing, but was on the speeding launch "for the ride."

His companion, a 45-year-old Dorchester man, said he owned the boat in which they were riding when police grabbed them. He denied knowing anything about the small arsenal police found cached at Squaw Head, Squantum.

Torso Victim Identified as Male Dancer

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (INS)—A Broadway dancer, who, with his partner, had appeared at some of New York's swankiest hotels, was disclosed today as the victim of the torso murder mystery that has baffled police since Aug. 20.

He was identified as Solon Burt Harger, 38, of the dancing team of Harger and Mayeo, featured in the Broadway musical, "Early To Bed," and last seen at the Hotel Pierre cotillion roof.

Identification was made as police took Walter Dahl, 30, of Philadelphia, into custody, charging he confessed the slaying.

According to the story told by Dahl ot police, a furious struggle preceded the murder in their Times sq. apartment.

The prisoner, who gave his address as Philadelphia and his occupation as a freight handler claimed Harger came after him with an ice pick after his "improper advances" were repulsed. Dahl said he grabbed a hammer out of a desk drawer and hit his friend several times, until the latter was dead.

Later, he dismembered the body, dumping parts of it overboard. In full sight of fellow-passengers on a Staten Island ferry, he dumped overboard the torso, wrapped in a towel.

When Dahl pretended the dropping of the bundle was accidental, his fellow-passengers sympathized with him over his loss.

The torso was found three days after the slaying, and Dahl was taken to Bellevue morgue to view it. He refused to identify it as that of his friend.

He later aroused detectives' suspicions by trying to tell them Harger was alive, in Chicago, and on his way to see his brother in Richmond, Cal.

From then on, he was under constant surveillance. Yesterday afternoon, he was arrested as he entered Pennsylvania Station to take a train to Chicago.

Feared Devils, Slayer of Wife, Two Sons, Says

CLEVELAND, Oct. 6 (AP)—A 36-year-old mechanic was held for investigation today after police quoted him as saying he killed his two sons to protect them from devils and beat his wife to death to ease his conscience.

Police found Chester Kolladziej last night in an upstairs suite with the bodies of his wife, Jane, 32, and his sons, Robert, 7, and David, 3, who had been beaten to death with a gaspipe and stabbed with a screwdriver.

The bodies were found neatly wrapped in blankets and laid on beds, police said. The heads were crushed and over 30 wounds were found in the chest of each boy, they reported.

Police Sgt. Carlson, who said Kolladziej admitted slaying his family, quoted the mechanic as saying:

"I was afraid they would be possessed by devils and would grow up to be bad boys," and "my conscience drove me to it," when questioned about his wife.

Kolladziej spent six weeks in a hospital after being probated by his wife but was released recently at her insistence, city hospital officials told police.

The family moved into the home of his parents after he was released, and moved into the upstairs suite last week.

The mechanic's father, Peter Kolladziej, said he tried the door of the suite after his suspicions were aroused by the absence of the two boys.

He called police who broke down the door.

Widows Will Send Buddies Yule Gifts

Two poignant letters, both from young war widows, have come to the Christmas Gifts for Buddies Overseas campaign. These women, whose husbands fell on the battlefields of France, are enlisting in the campaign because they want to feel, by sending Chritsmas gifts to the two men they lost, as though they were reaching their husbands. Neither of their husbands received the packages his wife sent him last Christmas.

One of the widows writes:

"Last year my husband was killed in action in France. He didn't receive the Christmas gift box I sent him. But by sending a gift to someone else, to some overseas soldier who might be forgotten, I'll feel as if I were still sending a gift to him."

The other war widow writes:

"My husband was killed in action in France a little over a year ago, and for his sake and in his memory I want to send some lonely soldier a Christmas box. I would feel as if I were sending it to one of my own."

Those who enlist in this campaign, sponsored by the Record-American and Sunday Advertiser, are urged to prepare and mail their gift boxes immediately, to meet the deadline of Oct. 15 for mailing Christmas packages overseas.

Fill out and mail the coupon accompanying this article and you will receive by return mail a label bearing a name and overseas address of a chaplain to whom your Christmas box may be sent and who will deliver it to some service man or woman in his outfit.

Even if many of the boys will be home by Christmas, remember that there are millions who will still be overseas. Do your share to ensure that none will be forgotten in this year of victory.

full support from the striking oil workers.

The various locals met to discuss the government's seizure order and to vote on the back-to-work order of President O. A. Knight of the CIO oil workers international union. Early, some of the strikers expressed dissatisfaction, but others voted to return to their jobs. Fifteen Texas refineries resumed operations.

The Ford Motor Co. said auto, truck and tractor production, idle since Sept. 14 after the layoff of nearly 50,000 employes, would be resumed next week following an expected ending of the six-weeks-old strike of 4500 Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co. workers.

At the same time, in Detroit, the UAW said a notice of intention to strike by some 145,000 Ford Co. workers would be filed Monday with the National Labor Relations Board in Washington. The primary issue, union officials said, would be the 30 per cent wage increase demand, which is being sought for the automotive industry.

In New York, longshoremen expressed confidence other locals would follow the action of the major AFL local in voting to return to work Monday.

In the Pacific Northwest the sailors' union backed the 61,000 striking AFL lumber workers in their attempt to shut down the industry. Water movement of lumber slowed down as AFL seamen refused to accept what they termed "hot lumber."

No change was reported in the strike of 2700 AFL bus drivers and station employes of the Pacific Greyhound lines, impeding travel in seven Northwest states. The walkout over a wage dispute affected 147,000 passengers daily, the company said.

'Gift of the Magi' Ballet In World Premiere Here

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Gift of the Magi," Simon Semenoff's ballet based on the tender love story by O. Henry, was given its world premiere presentation last night before a capacity audience in the Opera House.

It was the second world premiere in the Ballet Theater's single week's engagement here. It was infinitely less rewarding than the one of the night before, young Michael Kidd's charming "On Stage!"

Where the latter has freshness and vitality, the former clings to the swans-and-enchanted-princess school of classic ballet. Several of its six scenes, notably Nora Kaye's hair-combing scene, have grace and a touching warmth. But the story is never integrated and the choreography is lacking.

Those acquainted with the O. Henry story must have found difficulty in interpreting the ballet. The detail of the selling of the watch is completely obscured. Otherwise, the principals have little opportunity to show their choreographic wares to the customers.

"Undertow," Antony Tudor's ballet after a suggestion by John Van Druten, was repeated last night with mixed reactions There are those who consider it one of modern ballet's really fine offerings. Some of us find its Freudian underworldlings on the unpalatable side and hardly for the children.

"Les Sylphides," the Michel Fokine ballet originally presented in St. Petersburg in 1908 under the title, "Chopiniana," opened the program. Again, it underscored the great and unpretentious art in the Markova-Dolin teamwork.

The provocative "Fancy Free," the ballet concerning the three sailors on shore leave with choreography by Jerome Robbins and music by Leonard Bernstein, was presented again last evening. It closed the fifth night's performance on a blithe note and with warm applause for sailors Michael Kidd, Harold Lang and John Kriza and their sudden acquaintances, Muriel Bentley, Janet Reed and Shirley Eckl.

Fashions Now at Their Loveliest

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

DAME FASHION undoubtedly resolved this year to take a leaf from the book of etiquette for the new fall frocks all pay mute testimony to the social graces. They make a woman look her feminine loveliest . . . are softer and more subtly draped . . . are devoted to utter simplicity of design . . . but carry a verve that's wedded to ease and nonchalance.

In most instances the bulk above the waistline silhouette has been gracefully interpreted by counterbalancing slender skirts for a curvaceous figure that accents femininity. Soft, lush fabrics have been lavishly used, since they hang well on a woman's body . . . and can be easily draped at the strategic and fashionable points of interest.

To Mainbocher Victory is no New Year's eve . . . so in his collection there are no forgetful "it's all-hunky-dory-now" dresses . . . a little more length, a little more fullness, a little more ease and freedom, a little more glamor . . . but no whoopee numbers . . . just beautifully behaved dresses.

Mainbocher's newest dresses look as though their wearers lost a little weight. To this designer's eye the too "poured-in" look generally and especially through the hips . . . doesn't seem right. So his dresses have a reassuring ease and are less tense . . . more relaxed and less in a hurry than the times from which we are emerging.

SOFTLY SIMPLE DRESSES

And that seems to sum up the whole keynote of the fall fashion picture . . . softly simple dresses of persuasive charm that do not attempt to contain too many ideas or too much design. We thoroughly agree with Mainbocher that the small waist . . . much as we like it . . . isn't for everyone in 1945 any more than it was in 1939. How could it be?

A large waist trying to masquerade as a tiny one is just as ludicrous, unhappy-painful as are big feet stuffed into small shoes and plump hands bulging over too tight gloves.

Clothes should be courteous and not shove their wearers around . . . not something too dramatically and overpoweringly active . . . but something mysteriously attractive and sweetly compelling. This season's clothes are meant to be enjoyed all day long, any time, almost anywhere. We've pictured some of the smartest-looking frocks.

THE CELEBRATED "Eisenhower" top which Anna Miller launched in her last season's collection takes on a new and different interpretation for the new season . . . as the bloused, upper half of a one-piece beige wool dress. The new shoulder look . . . broadened and rounded . . . is reflected in the fashion-in-one, all-of-a-piece soft underarm sleeves.

BRIGHT COLOR accent, so new this fall, has been skillfully employed by Clare Potter in this interesting fabric-tie-up . . . a two-piece dress of black wool jersey . . . one of the season's smart fabrics . . . and multi-colored striped taffeta.

Smartest For Fall

THE APRON has come out of the kitchen to frequent the smartest places and on the best-togged girls in town. But, here is a slight variation of the apron effect . . . a unique draped flange set into a side seam of the skirt. Sherry grey wool combined with brown in a one-piece affair is Joseph Halbert's contribution to the smooth bodice treatment and rounded hipline fashion edict.

THE EXCITING underscoring of black . . . an Anna Miller signature touch . . . with jet "necklace" and deep black velvet cuffs make this afternoon dress in sheer beige woolen a sartorial classic. Self fabric buttons over one shoulder . . . and down the side of the skirt seam . . . are other keynotes.

Fine Sweet Spiced Syrup

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

MANY end-of-the-season fruits may still be preserved or pickled and tucked into jars for use during the winter months. Here's a grand sweet spiced syrup:

SWEET SPICED SYRUP

(For a Sweet Sour Relish)

3 cups cider vinegar
2 tsp. whole cloves
2 tsp. whole allspice
1 tsp. blades of mace
1 cup corn syrup 1 cup honey
1 cup sugar ½ tsp. salt

Fruit:

5 lbs. small carrots or
5 lbs. plums

To prepare syrup: Measure vinegar, spices, sweetening and salt into heavy saucepan, bring slowly to boiling and simmer 4 minutes until rich. Keep hot to pour over carrots or plums.

WHOLE SPICED CARROTS

Scrub 5 lbs. small carrots well; cover with boiling water and simmer until skins will slip (about 5 minutes). Drain; rinse with cold water. Slice lengthwise and cut to fit jars. Add boiling syrup. Cover and let stand overnight. The next morning bring slowly to boiling and simmer 5 to 8 minutes. Pack into hot sterile jars; strain spices from syrup and fill each jar to top. Makes about 10 half-pint jars.

WHOLE SPICED PLUMS

Wash plums and pierce skins with fork (this will guard against much of the usual bursting skins). Cover with prepared syrup and let stand overnight. In the morning, bring gently to boiling and simmer 10 minutes. Pack into hot sterilized pint jars. Strain spices from syrup, then fill jars to top. Seal. Makes about 8 pints.

SPICED GRAPES

6 lbs. blue grapes
1 lb. mild honey
2 cups light corn syrup
2 cups sugar 1 cup water.
1 tbsp. ground cloves
1 tbsp. ground allspice

Wash the grapes; pick from stems and slip skins from grapes, saving the skins. Put pulp into heavy saucepan with 1-2 cup of the water. Simmer gently until pulp is soft and seeds are loosened. Rub through strainer. Add pulp to the skins. Add remaining ingredients. Bring gently to boiling, then turn heat low and simmer to consistency of preserves. Test by dropping from spoon; when jelly test is reached, pour into hot sterilized glasses. Cover at once with melted paraffin. Cool. Cover with lid or paper caps. Label. Store. Makes 8 to 10 8-oz. glasses.

APPLE CHUTNEY

4 lbs. onions
3 lbs. tart cooking apples
1 lemon 2 cups molasses
2 cups corn syrup 1 cup sugar
1 lb. seeded raisins 3 tsp. salt
2 tsp. ground ginger
2 tsp. powdered cloves
2 tsp. powdered allspice
Dash cayenne pepper

Wash onions. Pour boiling water over top; let stand 5 minutes. Drain, rinse with cold water; remove skins. Wash, quarter, core the apples. Wash and slice the lemon. Put onions, apple and lemon through coarse knife of meat grinder. Add remaining ingredients. Simmer gently until mixture is rich and thick and dark. This will take about 2 hours. Fill hot sterilized preserve jars; cover at once with melted paraffin. When cold cover with lid or paper caps, label and store. Makes about 6 pints.

The Hearst Newspapers have always believed in keeping AMERICA PREPARED

New York American, August 6, 1926

"Whatever is right can be achieved through the irresistible power of awakened and informed public opinion. Our object, therefore, is not to enquire whether a thing can be done, but whether it ought to be done, and if it ought to be done, to so exert the forces of publicity that public opinion will compel it to be done."

W R Hearst

In 1898 the Hearst Newspapers called for a mighty navy for the United States.

In 1903 the Hearst Newspapers saw their proposal for an Isthmian canal approved despite powerful opposition when our government signed a treaty with Panama.

In 1910 the Hearst Newspapers predicted that air power would determine military and naval victory in future wars.

In 1917 the Hearst Newspapers came out for universal military service as "the only effective system . . . the only democratic system."

In 1928 the Hearst Newspapers called for a great fleet of submarines as well as swarms of planes.

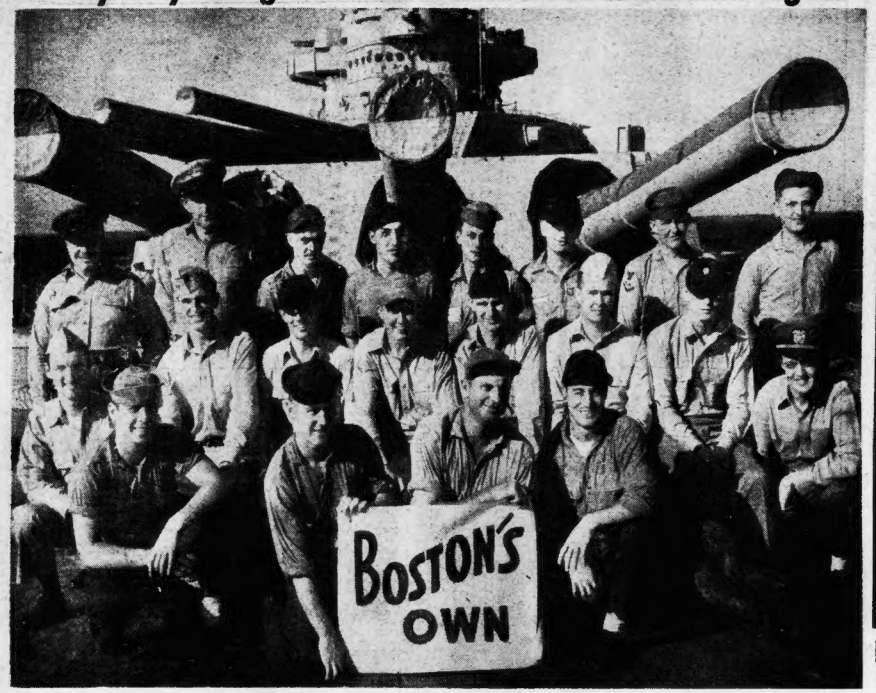

In 1932 the Hearst Newspapers demanded military control of the Hawaiian Islands to make them a genuine defense base for America against Japan.

In 1935 the Hearst Newspapers called our budget of $13,000,000 for air defense "hopelessly inadequate."

In 1941 the Hearst Newspapers were still calling for more planes, more ships, more bases when death suddenly rained from the skies at Pearl Harbor.

In 1945 the Hearst Newspapers re-published editorials written by William Randolph Hearst in 1940 urging universal military training.

STILL ASLEEP

AN IMPORTANT shipping line executive now warns that a lack of suitable pier facilities is apt to prevent the Port of Boston from being included in the resumption of intercoastal steamship services scheduled for November first.

In simpler language, we keep on being a maritime no-man's-land.

As long as two years ago the business, banking and industrial leaders of the State predicted this would happen.

But the habitually lax and lazy officials whom the taxpayers maintain in ease and luxury were neither impressed nor convinced.

These gentlemen, who never seem to remember that they are paid to protect the people's jobs and stimulate their prosperity, moved like snails, when and if they moved at all.

So, at this late date, we have not a single new pier or a worthwhile improvement of any kind.

Little or nothing has been done with the fifteen million dollars which the Legislature appropriated for the port last Spring.

The appointment of the Port Authority was similarly delayed for nearly two months.

And no real effort has been made since to obtain an aggressive and competent port manager with sufficient vigor and vitality to compete with the port managers of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Obviously, the stagnating conservatism which afflicted Boston and Massachusetts for generations and brought them almost to the brink of ruin before the war boom still persists.

It remains for the red-blooded lads returning from the battlefields, determined to achieve enduring prosperity for themselves and their families, to exert themselves further and do something to remedy the no-longer-tolerable situation.

REAL CHARITY

WE ARE pleased to report that the National Braille Press will register students in classes for the hand transcription of Braille next Monday from two to four in the afternoon and from six to eight in the evening at 4 Park st., Boston.

The course is for twelve weeks—one hour each week in the classroom, and upon completion of the course, if the work is acceptable, a certificate will be awarded, and the transcriber may then accept assignments.

The Braille Press is also issuing a call for bookbinders and students in binding. This phase of the work is fascinating, and the training period short and interesting.

There is a great and increasing need for Braille.

More than two hundred thousand blind persons in the country require it to read, study and earn a living.

The many service men who lost their sight in battle owe their happiness and rehabilitation to it.

We hope every person who can afford to give a little spare time to a truly charitable cause will heed the appeal of the National Braille Press and go to 4 Park street Monday or call CAP. 0481.

GET THE FACTS

A WOMAN accused in a distant State of taking another woman's child testified this week that her offense was motivated by the knowledge that she could not have a baby of her own.

The reason for this misfortune, she explained, was that she had been sterilized after she escaped from a reform school in her youth.

HOW WIDESPREAD IS THIS STERILIZATION PRACTICE?

HOW MUCH OF IT IS DONE SECRETLY AND LEGALLY IN THE NEW ENGLAND AREA?

Members of the State Legislatures who want to serve their constituents in a commendable manner should make it their business to find out.

All the laws and regulations dealing with sterilization should be reviewed and, in many instances, repealed.

TRUMAN is the first President of the United States named Harry. There have been five Presidents named James, three William, two Andrew and two Franklin. If you can't immediately state what other President besides F. D. Roosevelt was named Franklin, your old history teacher should certainly be ashamed of you. And how quick can you reel off the full names of the five Presidents whose first name was James?

HORSES & WOMEN: Stating he is in love, a subscriber wants to know "the most effective technique" to handle the situation successfully. He asks: "Shall I tell the girl I love her right away or keep her guessing for a time?" Our Horses & Women experts suggest the young gentleman tell the girl he loves her right away and to spare no adjectives. However, after three meetings his attitude on the next two should be one of indifference. Shouldn't mention love or even kiss the girl. This will puzzle her. The important thing, according to our H & W experts, is not to make a woman guess whether you love her at first but to keep her guessing later as to whether you still love her. Trying to find that out will keep her interested and striving to please.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—You said Barbara Stanwyck was graduated from some high school in Brooklyn. I saw her quoted as saying she came from a poor neighborhood, had no educational advantages and didn't even graduate from grammar school. A—That sounds like a press agent's story to me. Barbara is a gradulate of Erasmus Hall High School, one of the oldest and best high schools in the country. Q—Name six celebrities named Ames or forward stogie by return mail. A—Easy question. "Snake" Ames, Princeton football star; Leon Ames, pitcher for New York Giants; Robert Ames, actor, once the husband of Vivenne Segal; Winthrop Ames, theatrical producer; Adrienne Ames, actress and radio commentator; Edgar Ames, Seattle, Wash., shipbuilder and man responsible for development of Seattle's magnificent harbor.

HOME MANAGERS: In questioning the claims of those home managers who say they do their work in from three to six hours, some feminine subscribers have sent me their schedules of daily tasks. What some young women with a husband, a house and three children have to do in a day is enough to make you shudder. It seems work enough for at least three women. However, most of them say they don't really mind if they know it is appreciated by their husbands. So, sir, if your charming wife has a house, three kiddies and you to take care of, just develop a sympathetic understanding of her problems, and life will run smoothly at your place.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By GEORGE DIXON

(Distributed by King Features Synd. Reproduction prohibited.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—Regulation of petroleum imports to Spain is nothing new. It was being done back in the administration of President Rutherford B. Hayes.

Jimmy Byrnes

Our minister to Spain at that time was James Russell Lowell, a Cambridge fellow who had a nice side line writing essays. He knocked off a couple of fair to middling pieces called "The Biglow Papers" and "The Vision of Sir Launfal" which were considered pretty hot stuff back in the 1850's.

Ambassador Lowell got wind of the skullduggery in the business of Spanish oil imports. So he sat down and wrote a confidential letter to Secretary of State William H. Evarts.

The letter, dated Madrid, Feb. 6, 1878, is now one of our great historical documents. It is somewhat more pungent than the average State Department communication today, as I trust you will agree.

I JUST DARE Jimmy Byrnes to do any better. Here's the letter, folks:

"Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge your dispatch referring to certain cargoes of petroleum shipped by Messrs. Fischer and Keller of New York to Bilbao as crude oil, and now held by the Spanish custom house officials of that port and on the ground of attempted fraud as being really refined oil and therefore liable to higher duty.

"Having occasion to see Mr. Silvela this afternoon, I thought it as well to mention the case to him, though I had not, of course, yet had time to communicate with our consular agent at Bilbao, and to obtain more precise information in regard to the state of affairs there.

"Mr. Silvela told me that the matter had already been brought to his attention by the Comte de Chandordy, the French ambassador, the refining factory mentioned in the letter of the shippers to the State Department, having been built by a French citizen, one Fourcarde, who had long been an object of suspicion and surveillance by the Spanish government on account of detected attempts at fraud on the revenue (by which he has made a large fortune), and who was believed to have set up this very establishment merely as a cloak for fraudulent importations.

"One of these frauds has been the importation of refined mineral oil artifically colored (as sugar has been in America) so as to pass for crude, and the cargoes mentioned have been thus doctored, being held only till an analysis can be made by experts of whom one can be named exparte by the persons in interest of their agents.

"Under these circumstances perhaps it would help toward a solution of the case if some inquiry should be made by the department into the mercantile character of the shippers.

"One of the devices of Fourcarde which came within Mr. Silvela's own knowledge when in another department of the government, is so ingenious and amusing as to be worth recounting. The Frenchman's object was to smuggle petroleum into Madrid without paying the octroi.

"To this end he established his storehouses in the suburbs, and then hiring all the leanest women that could be found, he made good all their physical defects with tin cases filled with petroleum, thus giving them what Dr. Johnson could have called the pictorial proportions of Juno.

"But one fatal day he sent in a damsel whose contours aroused the emotions of one of the guardians at the gates."

★ ★ ★

TO MAKE a short story shorter, the gallant guard embraced the lady and found that she tinkled.

He had "struck oil!"

That was the end of Mr. Fourcarde's ingenious oil transportation arrangement.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—The Van Heflins (Frances Neal) are thinking it over . . . Local glamor belle, Doris Lilly, admits that those phone calls are put through by Col. Jimmy Stewart . . . Gloria Youngblood, once a Rudy Vallee dream girl, is in Florida to seek a divorce from her current husband. She has her next waiting for the go-ahead: Luthero Vargas of Brazil . . . Actor Jack Carson's right hand is badly infected—a casualty of his recent 18,000-mile Pacific tour . . . A rumor making the rounds has it that Jean Harlow's mother has found the star's lost diary and will publish it in book form . . . The Lauren Bacall-Howard Hawks feud has Warners in a dither . . . She refuses to set foot on the lot until he has left . . . They say Goodman Ace will dump his $3500 weekly writing chore on the Danny Kaye show.

MAURICE CHEVALIER has cancelled one of his plans to come to the United States this winter. Lucienne Boyer won't be in a hurry to cross the ocean, either . . . The black market in hotel rooms is worse now than it was during the war . . . Pamela Britton, Sinatra's fate in "Anchors Aweigh," has been the secret bride of Capt. Arthur Steele for more than two years . . . Biggest laugh in Hollywood these days is the literary activities of the rudest star out there. She's writing a book on charm! . . . . . . Penny Davidson, of the Diamond Horseshoe and Bob Cranston, of Boston, will waltz down the aisle at Christmas time . . . Warners is testing titian-haired Thana Barclay, of the Latin Quarter, on the theory that she's another Ann Sheridan.

* * *

GEORGIE JESSEL says that his ex-wife, Lois Andrews, has become a home girl and frightfully domestic as a result of her impending marriage to radio singer David Street . . . Martha Stewart arrived from the Coast and was promptly smothered in orchids by Joe E. Lewis . . . Garbo has become fascinated by numerology . . . Greer Garson's bells are the gab of the MGM lot. Anyway, this is the story. It seems she doesn't like hearing her name shouted by the studio minions, so the executives arranged to have her paged by the clanking of a cow-bell outside her dressing room. Miss Garson signals that she has heard the summons by tinkling a small dinner bell.

CONFLICTING REPORTS on the Murray Korman-Pat Farrell divorce situation have Broadwayites baffled. Murray alleges they're happily reconciled for good; Pat says she'll see her lawyers. And further scuttlebutt is that Errol Flynn keeps calling her from California to tell her he's joining her here . . . Patti Andrews, of the trio, and Marty Melcher, the agent, have started construction on a home in Hollywood—but won't get married until they see the last brick in place.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6—Maureen O'Hara stopped by for tea a few days ago and I couldn't take my eyes off her. She had come from the studio and wore little or no makeup. I thought I had seldom seen a prettier girl.

Maureen O'Hara

She had been told that day she was to be starred in "Strange Adventures of Sinbad" at RKO, an original story by John Twist and George Worthing Yates, and she liked the idea immensely.

I don't wonder she is excited about another period picture, for her costumes in "Spanish Main" are gorgeous.

WELL, HERE is news in a town that has been rather dull the past week—William Dieterle has taken over on "Duel in the Sun" and is doing a prologue and additional scenes. When I talked to David Selznick, he confirmed the Dieterle appointment, but said King Vidor and he had parted amicably. Vidor, he told me, had other commitments and couldn't wait to finish "Duel," which had gone on longer than they had expected.

IF RAY MILLAND wants to go to England to star in the new James Hilton novel, "So Well Remembered," for J. Arthur Rank, the job is his. A letter today was just crammed with British film news, and says Rank has cabled Ray. Does that mean Milland's contract with Paramount is coming up for renewal, or that Rank will try to borrow him?

* * *

WE HAVE BEEN hearing about the AGFA color developed in Germany under the Hitler regime and warned it would be terrific competition to Technicolor. Well, if "Lady of My Dreams" is a criterion, I don't think American Technicolor has a thing to worry about. I have seen this German musical comedy and AGFA process is good to a certain point, but it is by no means in Technicolor's class.

AS SOON AS ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHN gets a moment she'll confer with Larry Weingarten about "A Free Soul." I'm terribly interested in this news because it means there make be a remake of this story which made history for Clark Gable. Remember, he played opposite Norma Shearer and Lionel Barrymore?

* * *

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Mae West is again talking movies. She wants to produce a series for United Artists; the Charles Smith divorce comes up Oct. 10. A whole year must elapse before Charlie and June Duprez can marry; Betty Hutton was given a bridal shower in the American room of the Brown Derby and all of her Paramount friends were there. Dorothy Lamour, who is taking farming seriously (she's living in a five-room log cabin on her ranch), left her churning to attend the party. Gary Goff, son of Tuffy (Abner of Lum 'n' Abner) Goff, is in a tizzy over his first dancing party. Yesterday was his 12th birthday and it was the first time he was allowed to call for his date - Nancy Lauck, age 11 (Lum's daughter); Stephen Sleshinger, the smart operator who sold "Stars and Stripes" to MGM for $100,000, has tied up "Leatherneck," the Marines' publication.

* * *

JAN RUSSELL has joined her husband, Bob Waterfield, in Cleveland, where Bob is playing pro football; Jerry Wayne (he's a well-known radio crooner) and his wife have failed to reconcile; one of our well-known actors almost didn't get back from his native Mexico. He got into a poker game that lasted ten days; Harry Joe Brown is in bed with a chipped vertebra. He had a bad fall; Ida Lupino is wondering when the priorities on telephones will be lifted. She hasn't had one in months. The studio wonders, too. Ward Bond danced the rhumba with Patricia Rock, the British star. First time he's even tried to dance since his automobile accident a year ago.

Boston After Dark

THE TIME-WORN GAG of "past-posting" bookmakers, i. e.: of placing a bet on a winning horse after the race was won, has bobbed up in Boston (of all places) in a new guise . . . A slicker with a great deal of money staged the successful coup . . . He has been active in town for more than two weeks, and has been betting quite heavily, it turned out, with several bookmakers . . . In fact, one of the bookies was hit quite seriously . . . Working from an office with a telephone switchboard the slicker obviously had planned his operations to the last detail . . . In fact, the operator of the switchboard (who has vanished with the "horse-player") was an accomplice.

* * *

HERE'S THE WAY it worked . . . The smartie placed three or four bets each day with several books, doing his business by telephone after depositing a sum of money to guarantee his bets . . . He mixed his play . . . He would bet a favorite, then a medium long shot, then a favorite and then a very long shot . . . The law of averages worked for him, and after a fortnight of play in which he lost more than he won, he finally clicked with a long shot that dented one particular bookmaker's bankroll considerably.

* * *

THEN HE PLAYED "COY" with that particular bookmaker . . . When the runner for the bookie arrived the following day, the "horse-player," posing as a business man with time on his hands and a love for "action," told the runner that he was through: that he had had his fling, and was "off the horses" . . . He sandwiched a bit of moralizing in with his little speech, and pointed out to the runner that a horse player had no chance to win.

* * *

THE RUNNER was aware that in this customer's case the rule that "all horse-players die broke" had experienced an exception . . . He was aware too that his boss, the bookmaker who had been hit, was eager that he get a crack at winning back the sizable sum of money which the moralizer had won in his two weeks of playing . . . The "horse-player," however, would not budge . . . He was "through" . . . In fact, he told the runner that it would be a waste of time to solicit him again for bets.

* * *

BUT THE NEXT DAY saw a re-enactment of the scene . . . The runner dropped in again to the office where the lucky player was holding forth . . . And with him this time was his eager boss . . . The visitor apparently had hoped for such a visit in duplicate . . . Again he was firm in refusing to have anything more to do with the variable speed of the thoroughbreds . . . And again he was urged to place a bet . . . Time was a-wasting, and by now the first race was at the post.

* * *

THE "HORSE-PLAYER" now seemed about to weaken . . . In fact he spread a large bankroll on his flat-top desk and pretended to be separating the amount of his original capital from the surplus he had accumulated by his operations with the only unlucky bookmaker of the several he had bet with . . . The vision of the large roll made the bookie and his assistant more determined to get a chance to recoup their losses . . . And just then the telephone rang . . . And rang

* * *

"LET IT RING!" said the "horse-player" . . . "Just another pest looking for business and I've got all I can handle" . . . But suddenly he dissembled . . . In his most resigned manner, and as if bestowing a favor on the visitors, he picked out a six to one shot, seemingly on impulse, from the little racing sheet with prices and numbered horses which the bookmaker himself had submitted for the "horse-player's" perusal.

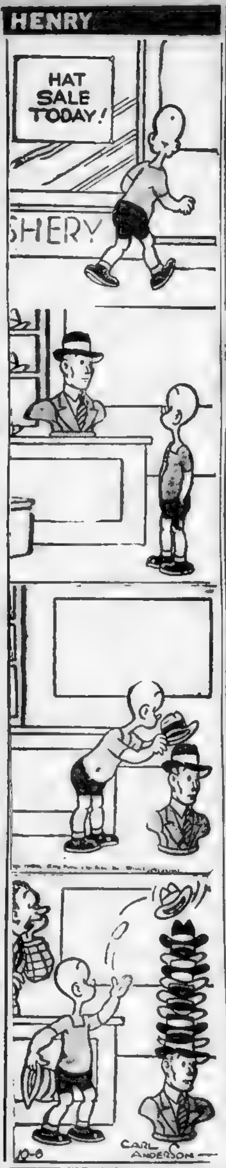

* * *

"I'LL MAKE one last bet," the "horse-player" declared. [illegible] . . . He laid down a thousand dollars . . . The bookmaker had come prepared . . . He had stood alongside the player's [illegible] telephone had stopped [illegible] sometime ago . . . Give or take a minute the first race was off . . . But the [illegible] and his aide knew that there was no chance of [illegible] having been "past-posted," because the player had not left the [illegible] and had been in their company for a full half-hour before the race was due to start.

* * *

IN EVENT THAT you haven't guessed the "gimmick" in the deal, that ringing telephone told the story . . . The accomplice on the switchboard had heard the winner of the first race . . . It was "No. 7" in the racing chart which gives the numbers and prices of the horses, and the telephone had rung exactly seven times before it ceased ringing, never, as far as is known, to ring that particular number again . . . For the "horse-player" and the switchboard operator are in parts unknown.

Dorothy Kilgallen writes "Broadway" every day for the Boston American.

2000 Guests At JVA Show

Two thousand happy boys and girls trooped into the Majestic and Tremont theaters this morning and with gleeful shouts watched the unfolding of "The Wonderful Adventures of Pinocchio," the full length fantasy peopled by Walt Disney's amazing dream world creatures.

The youngsters represented Junior Victory Army officers, members of the Boston Boys' and Boston Girls' Clubs, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls. Adult sponsors of JVA corps and leaders of the other youth associations were also present.

The free entertainment, provided by the management, was a reward for leaders in the JVA's fourth annual campaign to rid Greater Boston of ragweed, menace to hay fever and asthma sufferers, which closed a few days ago.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and full address to Junior Victory Army headquarters, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well wrapped in your letter.

'Didn't Know' Son-in-Law In Hammelburg---Patton

(This space, usually occupied by Austen Lake's column, was given today by Lake for the following Associated Press story detailing Gen. Patton's reasons for sending a Third Army task force into the Seventh Army's zone in Germany last March to liberate a prison camp at which it later was disclosed his son-in-law was a prisoner. The task force was all but wiped out, its armor destroyed and all except two of its men killed, wounded or captured.)

By DONALD DOANE

BAD TOELZ, Germany, Oct. 6 (AP)—Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., said today concern for all Americans held at Hammelburg prompted his abortive strike at the German camp last March 27 and he did not know until nine days later that his son-in-law was among the prisoners there.

Gen. Patton

The son-in-law is Lt. Col. John K. Waters, Maryland-born West Pointer who was captured in North Africa early in 1943. He was among American and Allied prisoners freed April 7, not by Patton's forces but by a column of the U. S. Seventh Army's 14th armored division.

Patton, who is being transferred Sunday from command of his veteran Third Army to the skeletonized 15th Army, lost a task force of about 300 men in the March 27 rescue attempt by his Fourth Armored Division. The defeat of the task force was related by AP Correspondent Edward D. Ball in an April 13 dispatch from the Third Army front.

Ball, now in Berlin, said today there were no indications at the time Patton sent out his task force that he knew his son-in-law was in the camp, since the last word from Waters had been that he was in a camp in Poland with Amon Carter, Jr.

Austen Lake, war correspondent-columnist of the Boston American, said in an article yesterday that the thrust by the Third Armored task force was "an incomprehensible mystery mission" until "we later discovered this stalag held Gen. Patton's son-in-law." Lake said the camp was some 50 miles outside the Third Army's combat zone and that it would have been overrun by the Seventh Army anyway in a matter of days.

Commenting upon his article, Patton displayed his personal and official diaries to show he did not know Waters was held at Hammelburg. He said the liberation of the camp was attempted because of fear that American prisoners "might be murdered" by the retreating Germans.

An entry in the official diary of Third Army headquarters said the armored task force set out on the night of March 26-27 "on a mission to recapture 800 to 900 American prisoners known held in the German prison camp at Hammelburg."

Patton's personal diary contained the March 26 notation that officers to whom he gave the orders for the mission outside the Third Army zone "were reluctant to do this because they said if I failed I would be severely criticized." It added: "However, I do not believe that fear of criticism should prevent my getting back American prisoners, particularly as in the last death struggles of the Germans, our men might be murdered."

The general said his information at the time was that Waters was held in Poland; that he learned his son-in-law was at Hammelburg only after the Seventh Army men reached the camp April 4.

An entry April 4 in the headquarters diary told of two lieutenants liberated at Hammelburg being picked up by the Third Army with the comment: "This is of interest because this (presumably referring to the two lieutenants) is the task force sent out from the Fourth Armored Division, which to date has never returned. This narrative is of particular interest to the Army commander because this is the first time he had news that his son-in-law, Col. Waters, was one of the prisoners."

Patton's aides said the force reached and liberated the American and Allied prisoners at Hammelburg, numbering from 1200 to 1500, but ran afoul big German forces on the return. Many of the prisoners and of Patton's force were captured and "a very few were killed," they said. Waters was wounded.

Only two men succeeded in returning to their units at the time, but most of the force was declared recovered later from prison camps.

Lake's article stated that all of the 53 tanks and motor vehicles of the task force had been lost. He said that the commander, Capt. Abe Baum of 2855 Claflin ave., The Bronx, N. Y., and T-Sgt. Charles O. Graham of Beckley, West Va., "were the only ones to get back as far as I can learn."

★ ★ ★

Now postmaster in the little railroad town of Thurmond, West Va., Graham expressed belief today that the mission was worth the risk. He was discharged from the Army Aug. 5 at Ft. George G. Meade, Md.

"The Germans pulled out several divisions to meet our task force, thinking the whole Fourth Armored Division was trying to break through," he said, and the Nazi shift permitted Patton to slip his Army on to Leipzig. "I consider this (Hammelburg attack) to have been a brilliant combat maneuver, though it cost a lot of men."

Graham, who holds the Silver Star and other decorations for bravery, said about 60 men were lost in the approach and rescue. He said the final action came about six miles out of Hammelburg on the return trip. A German Armored Division and two infantry divisions struck there when the force ran low on gasoline and stopped to transfer fuel from half-tracks. Graham escaped on foot.

55-yd. Brown Drive For Lead Over B. C.

By MURRAY KRAMER

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 6—Resuming a grid relationship which was terminated shortly after the start of World War I, the Bruins, despite their 50-0 loss to Pennsylvania last Saturday, were installed as pre-game favorites over the Eagles.

FIRST PERIOD

After a booting exchange, the Brown offensive rolled into action from its own 45 yard line. The Bruins went 55 yards on seven plays with Williams going the last 15 to score. Morris placekicked the extra point.

Score—Brown 7, Boston College 0.

Boston College kept Brown hemmed deep in its own territory the rest of the period, thanks to great kicking by Queenan. The Eagles could do nothing on the ground and made only one first down on an eleven yard pass from Cronin to Twomey, which put the ball on the Brown 35. B. C. later went to the 32 and then lost the ball on downs as time ran out.

Score—Brown 7, Boston College 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Carney intercepted a Brown pass and ran it back 24 yards to the Brown 20. Carney picked up 8 more on a sweep and Helstowski made it a first down on the ten. English moved it to the 8. On the next play Carney fumbled. At least six players dived for the pigskin and, when Norwood finally recovered for Brown, the ball was on the Bruin 30.

Diehl broke loose on a brilliant 32 yard run and put the ball on the B. C. 38. Kavazanjian raced to the 25, Diehl picked up 5 more and then Williams skirted right end to the 8. Williams went off tackle to the one foot line and Diehl plunged over. The conversion failed.

Score—Brown 13, Boston College 0.

Brown added another touchdown when McMorrow's boot was blocked by Brady on the B. C. 29 and bounded back into the end zone where Menard recovered it for the score. The placement again failed.

Score—Brown 19, Boston College 0.

The half ran out without any further scoring threats.

Score—Brown 19, Boston College 0.

Brockton, 13-0, Over Medford

By MIKE GILLOOLY

GILLIS STADIUM, Medford, Oct. 6—A slight drizzle failed to dampen the enthusiasm of close to 6,000 fans who turned out today for the football clash between Medford and Brockton High Schools—both undefeated this season. The Medford Mustangs were slight favorites.

FIRST PERIOD

Brockton took the kickoff on its own 10 with Bob Dupuy carrying back to the 39. Dupuy ripped off a first down to midfield but he was injured on the play and had to be carried off the field. Two more first downs pushed to the Medford 27, before Dom Bertocci was forced to kick as Medford took over on its own 11.

Two plays netted only two yards. Phil Richardson kicked out to Brockton's 40. With Mario Dimarzo passing, Brockton moved to the Medford 16 as the period ended.

Score—Medford 0, Brockton 0.

SECOND PERIOD

Phil Saba ripped off a first down on the six. All Brockton backs took cracks at the Medford line before Fran Jackson, on the fourth down, swept end from the three.

Score—Brockton 6, Medford 0.

Medford rattled off two first downs after the kickoff, but a bad punt gave Brockton the ball on its own 44. A penalty forced a kick. DiMarzo shortly intercepted a pass and Brockton took over again on its own 45.

On the first play Dom Bertocci southpawed a pass that was knocked into Saba's hand and the coach's nephew roared the rest of the way to another score. Bob Poudrier converted a placement.

Score—Brockton 13, Medford 0.

Tufts Hurls Pass For Stadium Score

By HERB FINNEGAN

HARVARD STADIUM, Oct. 6—Harvard, fair Harvard, opened its first formal football season since '42 today with favored Tufts as its opponent. The game marked the return to action of Coach Dick Harlow after two years of service in the Navy.

Tufts fielded a veteran eleven, one which lost two tight-lipped decisions to Harvard's "informals" last season. But with a veteran cast, tested under fire against Coast Guard and Yale, Lew Manly's team was thought to have too much finesse for untested Harvard.

Two members of Harlow's last Crimson eleven, tackle Willo Fisher and halfback Leo Flynn, were back in action after two years of service in the armed forces.

FIRST PERIOD:

Harvard won the toss and with the wind at its back, chose to kick off. Feldman carried back to the 34, and on the second down Beers scooted to midfield for a first down. A Feldman made 8 Irwin carried to the 19 for a third Tufts first down. Rohrs caught Irwin's pass in the end zone for a touchdown. Irwin kicked the point.

Score: Tufts7, Harvard 0.

Play was confined mostly to midfield after Harvard received the kickoff. On the last play of the period, Cowen intercepted Irwin's pass on the 31.

Score, TUFTS 7, HARVARD 0.

The first 12 minutes of this period was spent in punt exchanges. As the period neared its end, Roche scooted to the Tufts' 41 for Harvard's first first-down of the half. Two plays later Roche uncorked a down field pass to Fritts, who caught it on the Tufts 20 and raced over for a touchdown. Flynn's drop kick was blocked by Owens, and Tufts still had one-point margin.

Score: TUFTS 7, HARVARD 6.

Blue Devils, Navy Meet on Gridiron

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 6 (AP)—Duke's powerful Blue Devils, who have piled up 136 points in two starts, met Navy's strong, tough team today in a game that found dopesters favoring the Middies.

Navy's 44-man squad put a top-strength eleven on the field, but Duke was a shade under peak condition.

Ace Parker Pitches Against Redskins

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Virgil Trucks, out of the Navy less than a week, pitched Detroit to victory in the second game of the World Series. Ace Parker, out of the Navy less than a week, will do some football pitching for the Yanks tomorrow when they face the Redskins at Fenway Park (2:30). And it could be that he will emulate Trucks' feat.

"I'm not in prime football condition," said the former Duke all-America today, "but I can play part time."

Parker, whose last football game was played on Pearl Harbor Day, managed and played shortstop for the Norfolk Naval nine the past summer. That baseball kept his throwing arm limber was proved this morning at the Fens as the Yanks ran through final practice. He was hitting the receivers right on the nose.

You can bet Herb Kopf has a few spot plays picked for Ace. And while he's in there the Yanks will have a passer little inferior to the 'Skins famed Sammy Baugh.

"My best pro game was played against the Redskins in '40," the Ace admitted, and he's played some wowsers with a Brooklyn club that was hardly a match for the rest of the league at the time.

Signing of Ace gives the Yanks a shot in the arm for this most vital league contest. Their running and defensive work is vastly improved over '44, as was to be expected. But they lacked an A-1 passer. Parker will fill that void later, if not tomorrow.

It seems to me that when we give out medals the doctor's wife deserves a special one. I remember a night last Spring when ten of us were sitting in the doctor's house waiting to surprise him when he returned from his round of calls.

His wife, who planned this birthday party, began to watch the clock, and finally suggested we start dinner. During the meal the doctor phoned to say he didn't know when he'd be home because of a particularly difficult case.

Of course his wife was bitterly disappointed for him. Yet the next day she told me she hadn't mentioned the surprise party to him at all. "I couldn't tell him," she said, because he would have been so upset at his spoiling our party.

I think of such women when I play "Arrowsmith." To me Laura epitomizes the Doctor's Wife, whose patience and understanding have contributed much to the great strides medicine has made over the years.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Capt. Murray (Muzz) Patrick, former star defenseman of the New York Rangers, today was en route to that National Hockey League club's training camp at Winnipeg, Canada, after receiving his discharge from the Army.

Patrick, son of Lester Patrick, the Rangers' coach, enlisted in the Army in 1941 and participated in the Italian and French campaigns. He received his discharge papers yesterday.

Cesarino Win Row Endangered

Johnny Cesario's win string (35 straight pro fights) and John Henry Eskew's kayo run (five in a row) will be in danger of being ended Monday night in the Callahan A. C. boxing show at Mechanics Building.

Cesario, North End 20-year-old who boxes like featherweight champion Willie Pep and hits like a middleweight, steps in against capable Ceferino Bronco, Fall River welterweight.

Cesario, a Navy veteran, looks like the best of the young fighters Matchmaker Sam Silverman has unveiled at Mechanics Building this season. He's a stablemate of Pep, under the management of Lou Viscusi and Trainer Bill Gore.

Fred Cabral, Cambridge, vs. Broadway Johnny Jones, Pittsburgh, and Tommy Moore, South Boston, vs. Bobby English, Fall River, in a return bout.

Prim Kayoed by Tigers in Fourth

By JOE CASHMAN

WRIGLEY FIELD, Chicago, Oct. 6 (INS)—Dizzy Trout pitched the Detroit Tigers to a 4-to-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs today, to even the World Series at two games apiece. The talkative Detroit right hander, who kept the Cubs well subdued throughout, was robbed of a shutout when Rudy York's wild throw in the sixth inning enabled Don Johnson to cross the plate with Chicago's only run.

As in the other Detroit victory, Thursday, the Tigers did all their scoring in a single inning, the fourth, fashioning their four runs out of four hits and two walks.

Ray Prim was the victim of the Tiger bats.

After Mayo walked, Roger Cramer singled. So did Hank Greenberg, scoring Mayo. Cramer tallied when Roy Cullenbine, who had been hitless in the series until that point, doubled. York was walked intentionally. Greenberg scored when Jimmy Outlaw forced York at second, and Paul Richards' single scored Cullenbine.

That was the inning that saw Prim removed, Paul Derringer succeeding him. Later, Cub Manager Charlie Grimm used Hy Vandenberg and Paul Erickson on the mound.

"Ole Diz" was master throughout. The only score against him came when Johnson tripled in the sixth. Lowrey grounded out but York threw wildly after the putout, enabling Johnson to score.

Trout chalked up six strikeouts as he held the Cubs to five hits.

In the fourth he was in hot water temporarily when Johnson and Lowrey started proceedings off with singles. Then, he calmly

Eli Trails H. C., 21-O In Bowl Thriller

By PETE McGRATH

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 6—Holy Cross and Yale, New England's two top gridiron powers, renewed football relations after a lapse of 32 years before 20,000 spectators in Yale Bowl.

A hide-and-seek sun never did quite break through and recurrent drizzles up until game time made for a slippery field.

Yale was accounted a slight favorite because of the experience of the 11 starting Bulldogs, but the bigger Crusaders, with the vaunted Capt. Stan Koslowski in the van, were strongly supported.

FIRST PERIOD

Holy Cross won the toss and chose to receive. Byers returned Fusilli's kick of 17 yards to Holy Cross 32. Koslowski made one and lost it. Koslowski kicked to the Yale 30. Scannell broke away to midfield, but a clipping penalty set Yale back to its 45. Scannell raced right end for 20 yards. Dakos passed to Smith on the H. C. 30. Scannell swept right end for 11. Penn bucked to the 16.

Scannell made six in two tries.
